MEMORIES OF MY DEAREST GIRLFRIEND (Sadie Hunt)
By Mrs. Lois Schaffer

As I started this little journey into memory, these words I once read in a choir book came to me. I think you would like them:

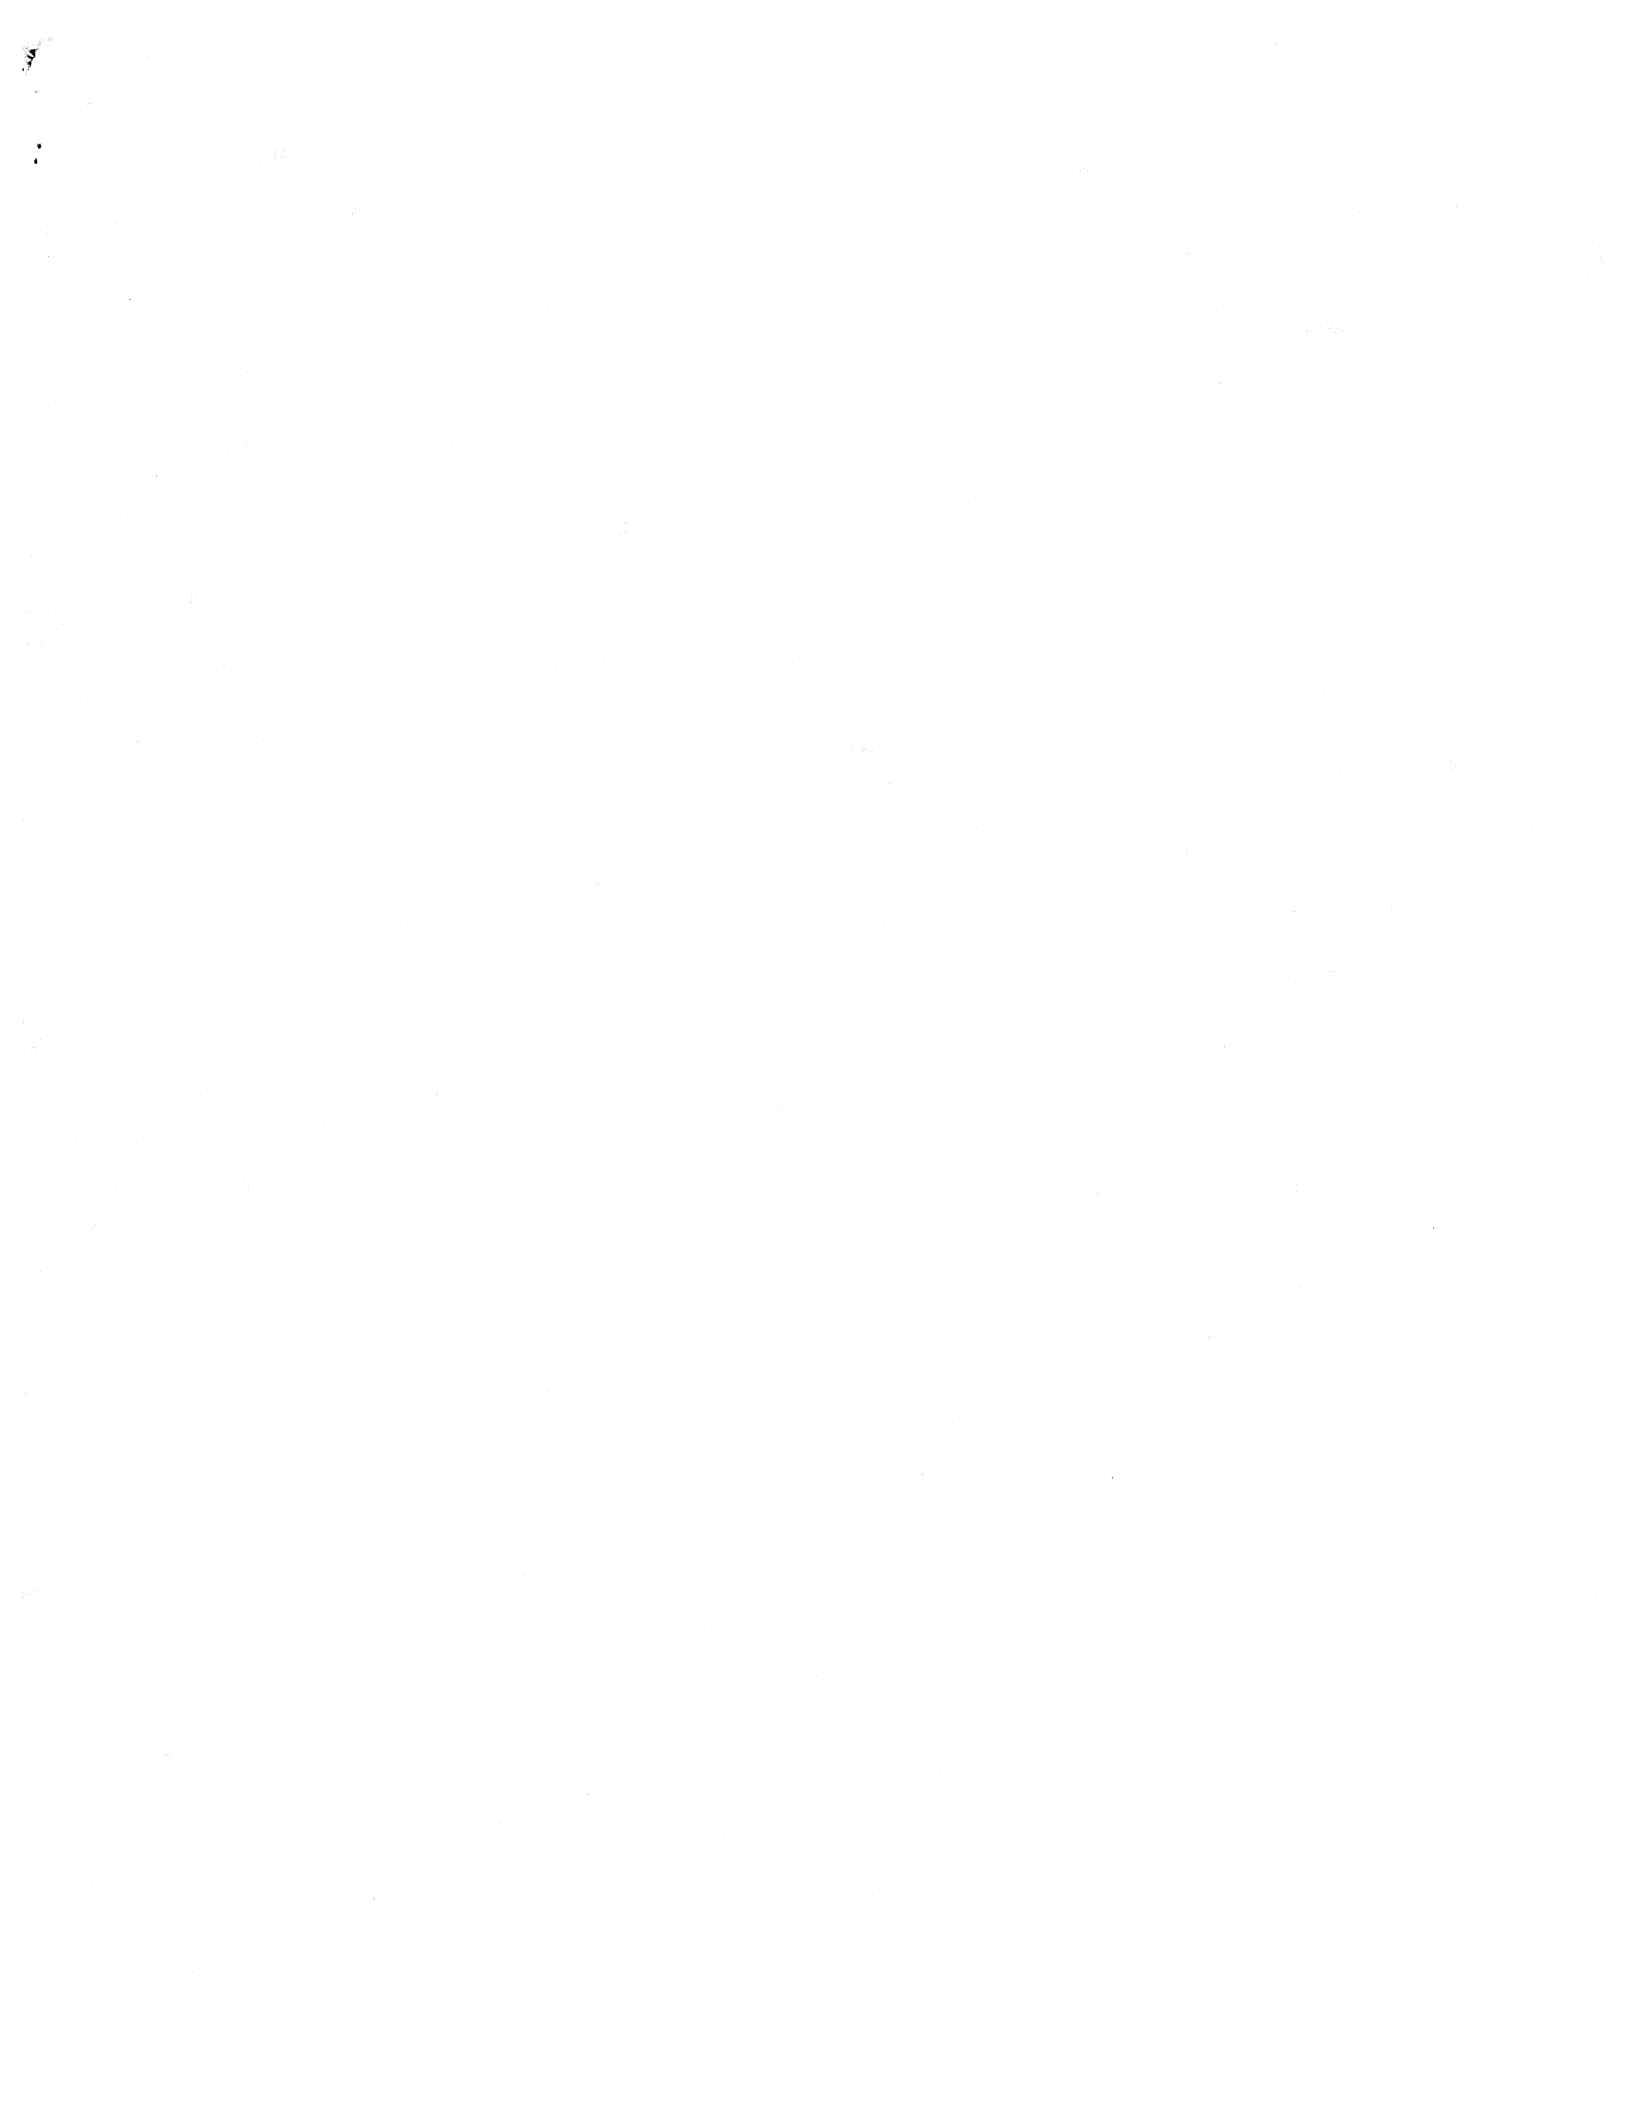

The heart is a house of many rooms
Where things are stored away.
The treasures of long remembered joys
And pearls of yesterday.
But there is a corner of the heart ---
A secret place, where we Cherish above all other things
A mother's memory.

I am writing this story of my dearest girlfriend at the request of her son, Laurence. I first met Sadie Hunt when we were children at grade school in Basin, Idaho. We had much in common as each of us had been left without the care of our dear mothers who had passed away. We were near the same age, each helping the other to prepare her lessons and to keep out of trouble.

The children of all grades from first to eighth were in one large room. There was much noise and confusion, as there was always a class from one of these grades in the front of the room reciting their lessons before a large blackboard. Also, at the front of the room, some pupil was constantly being corrected for some misbehavior.

Sadie and I, along with many more, kept the good will of the teacher to the extent that we were not marched to the front for correction. Sadie was a modest, sincere child, with a very pleasant disposition, never happier than when she was learning. Her judgment, even as a child, was above average.

When I met her she was mothering, even at that tender age, her sister Sylvia and her brother James. Her father was keeping up a home for his family and Sadie was taking care of this home. I do not remember her exact age at this time, nor do I know if it was only a few months or for just how long she carried this responsibility. I think this was for a very short time while her father was doing some special work.

in our teens the young people of the ward met and had our patriarchal blessings. We were blessed by Sadie's grandfather. This was an occasion of great sacredness to all of us. We could have our fun, but we could also arise to an occasion of this kind and receive our Father's blessings, for we were living clean lives and our faith was right. This occurred on October 30, 1904.

At this point I should like to say something of the home of Sadie's grandparents. It was one of those old farm homes that had sheltered a large family, although at this time the children had established homes of their own. Sadie, who was idolized by her grandparents and her friends were now enjoying the spirit of welcome in this home. This couple, Brother and Sister Dayley, were in modest circumstances, but the welcome of their home was of the richest nature. It was here that we gathered for our blessings on Sunday in the Fall. We were impressed with our blessings and with the fine home spirit.

A little later Sadie's cousin, Samuel Parker, and a friend, James Powell, came to work at the Basin for a few months. They stayed at the Dayley home. Sadie went out with James and I with Sammy, and great times we had for we were as brothers and sisters, which eliminated all lover's quarrels. We were each free to go with others as we chose. I must tell you of one incident which occurred at this time.

Sadie carried a great deal of responsibility at her grandparents home as regards to the housework and the garden, lawns, etc. She and I were getting the garden in order. James and Sammy promised to help, but kept putting us off. One afternoon they had been riding. When they came in Grandma Dayley fixed them a nice lunch. We hid the saddles and turned the horses in the pasture. We took the saddles off so fast that Grandpa Dayley laughed and said, "You girls should have been in the service of our country during war." He was right with us in all the jokes we could play on the boys. Grandma petted the boys, but goodness knows they needed it. Well, all this ended in the boys doing the garden work while we instructed them.

Our favorite pastime was singing in the evenings. Sammy had a guitar which he played very well. Grandma and Grandpa sat in easy chairs on the porch. The nightingales of all time had nothing on us. We sang everything from grand opera to ragtime. However, as songs of war stories and religious songs pleased our listeners best, we rendered the hymns and ballads more often.

A few years passed, in which Sadie and I were separated. However, before this time, we attended the Academy at Oakley, Idaho, together. Then I went to Paris, Idaho for more than a year, where I started nursing.

When I again met Sadie we were at Marion, Idaho at a dance. We cried for a minute when we met, then had a few minutes between dances to talk. It was then she told me she had fallen in love. She told me the young man was Cyrus Tolman. I had never met him. I remember feeling a distinct loss on learning that she would be married soon. She pointed Mr. Tolman out to me, and I told her that he looked like a fine young man. When she introduced me to him, we danced. I told him something he already knew; that he had selected one of the finest women I knew. There was no question in my mind that they would make a success of marriage.

I was away again for a time, and when we again met I was visiting my sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Nephi Dayley, living at Burley, Idaho on a homestead in Springdale. They told me Cyrus and Sadie lived up the road from them, a mile or more. I went to see them right away and found Cyrus working in the field with Sadie in their little house. We were delighted to see each other. She looked even more womanly than before. Everything was neat and clean. Best of all, she had a sweet baby boy. They were completely happy and were looking forward to the arrival of their second baby. Being a nurse, I inquired about the Doctor she had engaged. They were living some distance from the town of Burley--perhaps seven miles, with no telephone connecting Springdale with Burley. She assured me that the Doctors were good and that she was safe.

A few nights later, I was awakened in the night by Cyrus. He was in a wagon, and on his way to Burley for the doctor, for the time had arrived for the baby's birth. He asked me if I would go to Sadie and help them. He would hurry. I said I would go at once. I discovered it to be a dark night and raining hard. This Burley flat, as it was called, was noted for mud, coyotes and tramps. For the first time in my life, on being called to a case, I was afraid. Sadie was out there, somewhere, and needed help. It was so dark, and the road so bad. I hardly knew which way to go. There was no one at my sister's place to take me, so I prayed for Sadie and for Cyrus to get back in time with the doctor, and for me to reach her side in safety.

I stumbled through the dark and mud, falling a few times, and praying all the way. When I arrived, Sadie was in bed, calm, but in need of immediate help. I got my muddy shoes and clothing off, replacing them with some of hers, and assured her we were not really alone. She smiled and said, "I know." Soon after, the baby, a boy, was born and we were glad. There was a good fire and hot water when I arrived. I was thankful for my training, and, most of all, for God's help. After a while she and the baby slept. I became aware that Cyrus had not met with success in getting a doctor as soon as he had expected. I heated water and washed everything I could find. These clothes could be hung out when the rain was over.

It seemed a long time, then morning came, and with it Cyrus and a lady doctor, she being a substitute for the physician he set out to get. I am a little embarrassed to tell this, but, when I saw that lady doctor in the wagon beside Cyrus, I thought, "Well, it was a good thing they were late." In those days we had very little confidence in a lady as a doctor. I must confess I thought I perhaps knew more than she. Forgive this impression of lady doctors. Perhaps it was because we knew these midwives (bless their hearts) came in humility, with a prayer in their hearts, for all of them I have ever met were women of the highest character and Faith in God. Surely our Father also respected these noble women.

Some time passed again, and I was away. This time, when I visited my sister and asked first of all about Sadie, I learned she had a large family, including twin boys, three years old. Sadie and I had corresponded somewhat during this time. I now found them with a larger house, clean as usual. Order and love seemed the things that impressed one first in this home. We were delighted to see each other, and I was impressed with the ease in which she went about caring for her family. The twins were washing themselves before supper before the other children came from school. When they upset the wash basin, they got a cloth and wiped up the water without being told. Another thing I remember was a large milk pan full of the most beautiful rice pudding. It was browned perfectly. Then the children came and we were seated for supper. The complete order and feeling of cheer brought this thought to be,-- "If we had more families like this the state wouldn't have to maintain kindergartens. The home would maintain it."

At this time I told Cyrus and Sadie of love and approaching marriage, and they were happy with me.

In closing, I will say: "To have a mother, such as you children have, waiting for her husband and family should be heaven enough."
